First Secretary Yuki Yoshi SAITO (Embassy of Japan in Malaysia)

After joining the Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology (MEXT), Mr. Saito completed a master's degree in economics and a master's degree in public management from the University of London. So far, he has been involved in primary and secondary education administration, higher education administration, science and technology innovation administration. I was assigned to Malaysia in March 2021, and I am working on strengthening Japan-Malaysia relations mainly in the field of education, such as establishing overseas branches of Japanese universities as a new development of the Look East Policy.

Promotion of the Malaysia Look East Policy in the field of education

Year 2022 is the 40th anniversary of the Look East Policy in Malaysia. Under this policy, more than 26,000 students and trainees have been sent to Japan so far, not only supporting the development of Malaysia's society and industry, but also acting as a bridge between the two countries to promote mutual understanding and friendship. In today's seminar, I would like to look back on the achievements of the Look East Policy so far, and discuss together with you what kind of educational cooperation is possible with Malaysia, which is aiming to become a high-income country.
